

Contents

FOREWORD	v
PREFACE	ix
CURRICULUM AND TEACHING APPROACHES	1
The Effects of Modularized Instruction and Traditional Teaching Techniques on Cognitive Learning and Affective Behaviors of Student Nurses	3
Loucine M.D. Huckabay
The Relationship Between Senior Nursing Students' Ability to Formulate Nursing Diagnoses and the Curriculum Model	21
Vivien DeBack
Models and Model Building in Nursing	37
Wade Lancaster and Jeanette Lancaster
Ethics as a Component of Nursing Education	49
Marjorie Jones Stenberg
ADMINISTRATION, POLITICS AND EDUCATION	59
The Nursing Education Administrator: Accountable, Vulnerable, and Oppressed	61
Gertrude Torres
Nursing Education, Professionalism, and Autonomy: Social Constraints and the Goldmark Report	77
Myrtle P. Matejski
The Administrative Component of the Nurse Administrator's Role	91
Margaret L. McClure
Clinical Nursing: A Basis for Administrative Excellence	109
Barbara Brown

NURSING EDUCATION: PRACTICAL METHODS AND MODELS

Knowledge Generation and Transmission: A Role for the Nurse Administrator Mary E. Conway	119
Changing Perspectives in Preparing Nurse Administrators Rebecca Bergman	135
NURSING SERVICE AND EDUCATION	147
Uniting Service and Education at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center	149
The Adjunct Appointment Can Provide Realistic Experience for Leadership Students Claire Meisenheimer	183
Pitfalls in Developing Nurse Internship Programs Joan Gygax Spicer	193
Perspectives on Nursing Education: The Transition Process	199
CONTINUING EDUCATION	213
Evaluating Continuing Education: Quantification or Involvement? Donald A. Bille and Maureen Fitzgibbons	215
Staff Development at University Hospital, University of Washington	225
Continuing Education—Treatment for Outdatedness Dorothy J. del Bueno	271
Continuing Education: Current Contradictions in Inservice Mary Mundinger	277
INDEX	285

b:1060631x

i:24898831