Foreword	v
Introduction	1
1. Occurrence and metabolism of fluorides	3
Fluorides in the environment	3
Fluoride ingestion by man	5
Fluoride metabolism	9
Dental fluorosis	16
Urinary fluoride excretion and fluoride intake	23
Conclusion	25
References	26
2. Trends in dental caries	33
Global situation	33
3. Community water fluoridation	38
Areas with varying concentrations of fluoride in drinking-water	38
Community water fluoridation schemes	38
Climate and controlled water fluoridation	41
Systemic and topical effects of water fluoridation ..	42
Logistics, implementation, technical aspects, and defluoridation	44
Practical aspects of water fluoridation	57
Evaluation and safety	61
Legal aspects	62
Summary of requirements for introducing community water fluoridation	68
References	68
4. Salt fluoridation	74
Clinical trials	74
Mode of action	75
Logistics, implementation, and technical aspects	77
Economic aspects	79
Evaluation and safety	79
Legal aspects	80
References	82

5. Dietary fluoride supplements—school water and milk fluoridation	84
Clinical trials	84
Mode of action	90
Logistics, implementation, and technical aspects	91
Economic aspects	92
Evaluation and safety	93
Legal aspects	94
Indications for use	95
References	96
6. Topical fluorides	100
Toothpaste	100
Topical fluorides—group-administered	101
Topical fluorides—operator-administered	102
Combinations of fluoride therapy	103
Mode of action	105
Logistics, implementation, and technical aspects	105
Economic aspects	106
Evaluation and safety	111
Legal aspects	112
Indications for use	113
References	114
7. Other considerations concerning the appropriate uses of fluoride	116
Choice of fluoride vehicle	116
Involvement of health personnel in fluoridation programmes	118
Justification for new preventive measures	120
Approaches to testing preventive measures	120
The impact of declining caries prevalence on clinical testing	121
Future possibilities	121
Advice to individuals	122
Insights and guidelines	123
World Health Organization policy on fluorides	124
