

Table of Contents

1	Philip M. Hauser, Editor Introduction and Overview	1
2	Philip M. Hauser World Population Growth	12
	Retrospect—World Population, 12; Causes of the Population Explosion, 13; Examples of Growth, 17; Projections of World Population to 2000, 18; Projections to 2000 of Large Nations, 20; Projections of World Population by 2018 and 2068, 21; Economic and Political Implications, 23; Have and Have-not Nations, 24; The Revolution of Rising Expectations, 24; Economic Development Programs, 25; Inverse Relation Between Population Growth and Levels of Living, 25; Rapid Population Growth Obstructs Economic Development, 25; Gap Between Have and Have-not Nations is Increasing, 26; The Impact of Urbanization, 26; Bipolar Political World, 27; North-South Alignment, 28; Prospects for Fertility Control, 29; Concluding Observations, 32.
3	Irene B. Taeuber Population Growth in Less-Developed Countries	34
	Growth, 37; Less-developed Countries Excluding China, 38; China, 42; Transitions, 44; Historic Transitions, 46; Transitions in Process, 49; The Problems of Growth, 52; Continuities and Changes, 55.

- 4 Ansley J. Coale
 Population and Economic Development 59
- Demographic Characteristics of Poverty Areas, 59; High fertility, 60; Low or rapidly falling mortality, 60; Accelerating population growth, 60; A very young age distribution, 60; Density ranging from low to high, 61; Population and Income Per Head, 62; Alternative Population Projections, 63; Economic Development and Demographic Variables, 67; Age Distribution and Investment, 67; Effects of Labor Force Growth, 70; Effect of Density, 71; Declining Fertility and Per Capita Income (Summary), 75; Gains in Income Per Head, 77; Delaying Reduction in Fertility, 78; Population and the Labor Force, 80; Summary, 84.*
- 5 Philip M. Hauser
 The Population of the United States,
 Retrospect and Prospect 85
- The Total Population Outlook, 87; Future Total Population, 89; The Changing Age Structure, 93; Future Sex Composition, 99; Future Non-White Population, 99; Future Regional and Metropolitan Distribution, 101; Concluding Observations, 104.*
- 6 Joseph L. Fisher and Neal Potter
 Natural Resource Adequacy for the United States and the World 106
- Introduction, 106; What the Indicators Can Show, 108; The Case of the United States, 109; Per Capita Consumption, 111; Employment Per Unit of Output, 111; Relative Costs and Prices, 113; Net Imports, 113; Reserves and Potentials for Meeting Requirements, 114; World Trends in Resources, 116; Consumption of Output, 116; Food, 116; Energy, 117; Nonfuel Minerals, 117;*

Forest products, 119; Employment/Output Ratio, 119; Relative Price Trends, 120; Net Import Trends, 120; Conclusions, 121; Projections of Resource Demands, 122; Food Products, 123; Energy Commodities, 125; Nonfuel Minerals, 126; Forest Products, 127; Reserves and Alternate Supply Possibilities, 128; Food, 128; Energy, 131; Metallic Minerals, 133; Forest Products, 133; Water, 134; Some Concluding Observations, 136.

Frank W. Notestein, Dudley Kirk and Sheldon Segal

7

The Problem of Population Control 139

The Background, 140; Fertility and Mortality in Nineteenth Century Europe, 140; Changes in Reproductive Capacity, 140; The Development of Improved Contraceptives, 141; The Demographic Transition in Europe, 142; Demographic Prospects in Developing Countries, 144; The Problem, 145; The Necessity of Population Control, 145; Religion and Birth Control, 146; Family Planning Programs, 147; Physiologic Fertility Control, 152; Inhibition of Ovulation, 154; Tubal Transport of Ova, 155; Corpus Luteum Function, 156; Suppression of Sperm Production, 158; Fertilizing Capacity of Spermatozoa, 159; Human Seminal Fluid, 160; Practical Prospects, 160; The Growing World Consensus, 160; The Situation in Developing Countries, 162.

8

Frank Lorimer

Issues of Population Policy 168

Population as a World Problem, 168; Obstacles to Objective Analysis, 169; The Complexity of Developmental Processes, 174; Demographic Aspects of Economic and Social Development, 177; Population Density and Population Growth, 177; Fertility and Age Distribution, 177; Eco- conomic Aspects of Rapid Population Growth, 178; Relation Between the Control of Fertility and Other Developmental Processes, 179; The Trend Toward a Secular Consensus on the Central Issue of Population Policy, 181; Domestic Population Policy, 186; Concerning the Total Population Trend, 186; Immigration, 190; Demographic Aspects of Domestic Social Problems, 191; Aspects of the Distribution of Our National Population, 192; The Social Structure of Metropolitan Aggregations, 193; The Diverse Effects of Rapid Mass Migration, 195; Differential Reproduction Within the Demographic Pool, 200.

Index	207
The American Assembly	212